- 4 Beale, Edgar (Edited & Introduction by). *The Earth Between Them - Joseph Beale's Letters Home to Ireland from Victoria, 1852-53.

Mountmellick Development Association, Mountmellick 1999. 1st edition thus. Post 8vo. (2) + 126 + (5 index) pp. Frontispiece & 21 monochrome illustrations. Pictorial end-papers. Red cloth with gilt spine lettering. A very good bright copy in dj with one closed tear on front panel.

This is a reprint of a book which was first published in Sydney in 1975. The Beale family, who converted to Quakerism soon after their arrival in Ireland in 1652, had lived in Mountmellick, Co. Laois for some two centuries when the famine of the 1840's swept through the country. To give employment during this time Joseph Beale continued to operate his mills, with the result that by 1850 he was financially ruined. He then decided to make a new life for himself in Australia and these letters give a vivid picture of his early experiences there.

Some light wear on cover extremis & at spine tips. A good tight copy & apart from a few small marks, internally very clean. Scarce.
Not in Gilbert or Lowndes. COPAC locates only eight copies, with only one in Ireland.
Arthur Capel, whose father had been executed in 1649 for his part in the siege of Colchester and the fight against Cromwell, was made Earl of Essex after the Restoration. He held the office of Lord Lieutenant of Ireland 1672-77. It is believed that he carried out his duties with integrity, being described by Archbishop Talbot as "a wise and prudent man, who does not willingly give annoyance to those who live in peace".
On his recall to London he eventually fell victim to the perfidy of Charles and was put in the Tower. Here he was said to have "perished by his own hand" ("feloniously killed and murdered himself"), but the more likely agent of death is usually believed to have been a French servant who attended him.

- 35 Coffey, George. New Grange (Brugh na Boinne) and Other Incised Tumuli in Ireland - The Influence of Crete and the Aegean in the Extreme West of Europe in Early Times. €75.00
 Hodges, Figgis, Dublin / Williams & Norgate, London 1912. 1st edition. Medium 8vo. xii + 118 pp. Fold-out frontispiece & 8 plates. 95 in-text figures. Original green cloth with lettering in gilt on spine & front panel. A couple of college ex-lib stamps. Some fairly moderate wear at spine, else a very good clean copy. Scarce.
 "Five miles west of Drogheda, and thence extending about three miles along the northern bank of the Boyne towards Slane, are the remains of the most remarkable of the pre-Christian cemeteries of Ireland. ... As seen from the road the appearance of the mound is rather disappointing. It is overgrown with trees and bushes which obscure its outline, and lend to it the character of one of the many wooded knolls of the surrounding countryside. Moreover, the rising ground on which it stands foreshortens it and takes from its apparent bulk. Indeed, the great size of the monument cannot be realized until the visitor has walked round it." (p.1)
 Thanks mainly to the pioneering work of Dublin born George Coffey the site's importance was identified. It has since been explored and developed and has taken its place among the great archaeological treasures of the world.
- 36 Cole, Grenville A. J. & R. Lloyd Praeger (Editors). Handbook to the City of Dublin and the Surrounding District. €35.00

 "Prepared for the Meeting of the British Association, September 1908" this handbook contains numerous essays by the leading specialists of the day. A mine of information, with writers telling us about what they knew best.
- 37 Conlon, Lil. Cumann na mBan and the Women of Ireland 1913-25. €50.00
 For the Author / Printed by the Kilkenny People, Kilkenny 1969. 1st edition. Small crown 8vo. viii + (4) + 312 pp. 4 monochrome illustrations. Slight toning at margins. Original pictorial card wrappers which are a little dust soiled, else a very good clean copy. Scarce Founded in 1914 Cumann na mBan was a kind of female counterpart to the Irish Volunteer Movement. Many of its members acted as nurses and dispatch-carriers during the Easter Rising and the War of Independence. Their rejection in 1921 of the Anglo-Irish Treaty led to its radicalisation and this continued during the early 1920's when it was lead by Maud Gonne. The organisation was disbanded in 1925.

- 38 Cooney, Dudley Levistone. *Asses' Colts and Loving People - The Story of the People Called Methodists on the Carlow Circuit. €35.00

 Signed by Dudley Levistone Cooney on the title-page.
- 39 Croker, T. Crofton. *Fairy Legends and Traditions of the South of Ireland. €95.00
 Swan Sonnenschein, London 1902. 6th edition. Small crown 8vo. 352 pp. Vignette title-page, 3 full-page, numerous in-text illustrations & head & tail-pieces by Maclise & Green. Book plate. Green gilt stamped cloth with pictorial front panel. Some mottling on prelims & last few pages. Minor cover wear, else a very nice clean bright copy. Scarce.
 Thomas Crofton Croker was born in Cork city in 1798. As a young man he became an avid collector of folktales and superstitions which led to the publication in 1824 of his 'Researches' and the following year to 'Fairy Legends'. The success of these works generated a huge interest in the previously somewhat despised subject of folklore.
 It is quite likely that without his dedication much of the material gathered here would have been lost forever.
- 40 Cullen, Mary (Edited by). *1798 - 200 Years of Resonance. €30.00

 There are several contributors to this well-produced little volume.
- 42 Culligan-Hogan, Matthew J. *The Quest for the Galloping Hogan. €40.00
 The Tyrone Press, Hampton 1994. Later (enlarged ?) edition. Post 8vo. viii + (2) + 122 pp. 20 monochrome illustrations. 1 in-text map. Paper boards & cloth spine (with no lettering). Very good to near fine in about similar dj.
 First published in 1979, though the book makes no mention of the fact, it is subtitled "A man of Irish parentage seeks the truth about a legendary ancestor and finds the Irish soul."
 However, though it is difficult to have much confidence in an author who wears an eye-patch and who has published a book called 'Horrid Horoscopes', the subject matter in this case is of more than a little interest.
- 43 Czira, Madam Sidney Gifford. *The Years Flew By - The Recollections of Edited & Introduction by Alan Hayes. Foreword by Gifford Lewis. €35.00
 Arlan House, Galway 2000. 2nd edition, revised. Post 8vo. (8) + xlviii + (4) + 242 pp. 20 monochrome illustrations. A very good clean copy in lightly rubbed pictorial French flaps.

 An attractive facsimile reprint of Samuel Hayes' book, which first published in 1794, is now very scarce and expensive. Thomas Pakenham's new foreword adds much background information and there is also a very useful index.
- 78 Hayward, Richard. *Munster and the City of Cork. €85.00
 Phoenix House, London 1964. 1st edition. Royal 8vo. xvi + 354 pp. Frontispiece & 122 illustrations from pencil drawings by Raymond Piper. 1 double-page map. Pictorial end-papers. Green cloth with spine lettering in gilt on black panel. A very good to near fine copy in lightly chipped dj of a very attractive book.
 This is a marvellous book on "the ancient Irish province of Munster." The format being slightly larger than Richard Hayward's other books in the series, it gives even greater scope for Raymond Piper's wonderful drawings.
- 79 Henderson, Lieut-Col G. F. R. *Stonewall Jackson and the American Civil War. €125.00
Introduction by Viscount Wolseley.
 Longmans, Green, London 1905. New impression. Post 8vo. 2 volumes. xxviii + 447 + (1) & (8) + 528 pp. Frontispiece portrait & one other portrait plate. 33 maps & plans (5 folding). 2 bookplates. Original red cloth with gilt lettering on spine. A few fairly harmless pencil markings on margins. Spines rather faded & a little light cover wear, but overall a very nice clean set.
 Thomas 'Stonewall' Jackson, who was born in West Virginia in 1851, was the great-grandson of John Jackson who had emigrated from Ulster to America in 1748. On the secession of Virginia in 1861 Jackson took command of the Confederate troops during the Civil War. An outstanding leader and fearless soldier he led his men to numerous victories against the Federal troops; however, at Chancellorsville on May 2 1863 he was accidentally killed by his own troops. This biography, which was first published in 1898, is still considered an important study of the man and the soldier.

- 119 Lynam, Captain William. *The Adventures of Mick M'Quaid. €50.00
 The Office of the 'Shamrock', Dublin 1877. 1st edition thus ? Crown 4to. Volume 2 only. iv + 300 pp (double column). Frontispiece portrait & numerous in-text illustrations. Original blind decorated green cloth with spine lettering in gilt. One gathering loose with slight loss to bottom fore-corner of one page. Some moderate wear on cover & occasional light mottling, but overall a good clean copy.
 William Lynam was born in Co. Galway c.1833. He joined the army in 1867 and remained therein until he retired with the rank of major in 1881. He had meanwhile established himself as a writer and as publisher of the 'Shamrock' magazine; it was for this outlet that he created the character Mick M'Quaid which became a runaway success. Like Conan Doyle with Sherlock Holmes he soon tired of his creation, but his audience insisted that he bring him back.
 Though this is volume two the two stories it contains ('Mick M'Quaid, the Tinker' and 'Mick M'Quaid, M.D') are complete in themselves.

- 120 Lysaght, Edward E. The Gael. €75.00
 Maunsel, Dublin 1920. 2nd impression. Crown 8vo. (6) + 337 + (1) + (2 advts) pp.
 Original blue cloth with spine lettering in gilt. Ex-lib with stamp on verso of title-page.
 End-papers replaced. Just a trace of wear on cover, else a lovely bright clean copy in lightly chipped dj. Very scarce thus.
 Edward Edgeworth Lysaght was born in Somerset (1887) of distant Irish ancestry.
 Having departed Corpus Christi, Oxford under something of a cloud and without a degree, he ended up in a caravan near Liscannor in Co. Clare. Strangely enough, he was followed by his father, who bought a 600 acre farm in West Clare.
 "Early in 1919 he published a largely autobiographical novel entitled 'The Gael'.
 It traced the evolution of his thoughts from being a politically minded farmer, disenchanted with politicians, to being a follower of the executed leaders of 1916.
 The next year he joined with several other Lysaghts in changing his name to MacLysaght, so as to emphasise its Gaelic origin."

- 123 MacCarthy, Rev. N. Tuíte. Sermons for Sundays and Festivals; The Blessed Virgin, Charity Sermons, Panegyrics of the Saints, &c. Translated by D. Mahony. €50.00
 James Duffy, Dublin 1881. 3rd edition. Small crown 8vo. xvi + 544 pp. Burgundy cloth decorated in blind with gilt lettering on spine. A lovely bright fresh copy.
 "The biographical notice is necessarily meagre and imperfect." Very true, and expressing the most virulent anti-Protestant sentiments, it makes outlandish claims for Abbé MacCarthy's writings while telling us that his life was "almost entirely spent in seclusion, unrelieved by all variety of incident". Perhaps so, but it is difficult to match one sentiment with the other. But his 'Sermon on the Pernicious Effects of Bad Books' sounds like it must be worth at least a quick perusal.
- 124 MacCóil, Liam. The Book of Blackrock. €30.00

Brown cloth decorated in blind, with gilt lettering on spine. Stamps on recto of frontispiece causing a little seep-through. Fairly light cover wear, else a very nice clean copy. Scarce.
Theobald Mathew was born at Thomastown, Co. Tipperary in 1790. Ordained a Capuchin priest in Dublin in 1814, he went to minister among the poor in Cork. In about 1838 he became leader of the temperance movement and was untiring in his crusade of administering the pledge throughout the country, at one point having some half of the adult population on the dry. Interestingly, the stamps on the frontispiece are of a Templemore solicitor, so they actually add a little local interest to the book.

Royal 8vo. clxxvii + (17) + 624 & (18) + 736 & (22) + 1036 & (18) + 576 & (18) + 624 & (18) + 832 & (18) + 520 & (18) + 512 & (18) + 648 pp. Engraved frontispiece plate in each volume & 543 in-text engravings by numerous artists including Wakeman, Du Noyer, Petrie, with over 100 by O'Hanlon himself. Fold-out map outlined in colour. Original green buckram on bevelled boards with lettering in gilt on spines & front panels. All edges gilt. Small bequest stamp on title-pages. Occasional trace of foxing on prelims, else a lovely bright clean set. Very scarce in this condition.

John O'Hanlon was born near Stradbally, Queen's Co. (Laois) in 1821 into a relatively well-to-do farming family. However, circumstances changed with the death of his father and in 1842 he had to abandon his studies for the priesthood and take his mother and siblings to the United States. He spent the next eleven years in and around Missouri, eventually achieving his ambition to become a priest, returning to Ireland 1853.

It was also while in the States that he began putting pen to paper and there conceived, inter alia, the idea of writing the Lives of the Saints. He spent more than thirty years on this monumental task, but sadly, together with his other great work, the History of the Queen's County, it remained unfinished when he died in 1905. Originally published in parts, from 1873 onwards, with bound volumes appearing from 1875, it was to be complete in twelve, with each volume covering a calendar month. However, though the partly completed volume ten (1 - 21 October) was published sometime prior to O'Hanlon's death in 1905, it seems that a much smaller number were printed as they very rarely appear on the market, so to all intents and purposes the set is limited to the nine volumes here described. And though much work had been done for the months of November and December, nothing of them ever appeared.

 Memorably described by Maynard Keynes as a "half-human visitor to our age from the hag-ridden magic and enchanted woods of Celtic antiquity", David Lloyd George, 1st Earl Lloyd-George of Dwyfor, was the last Liberal MP and the only Welshman to hold the office of Prime Minister of Britain. For, although born in Manchester, he was by descent Welsh and spoke English only as his second language. Since his period as Prime Minister, from 1916 to 1922, coincided with one of the most turbulent in history on both the international and home fronts, he consequently had a large part to play in the peace negotiations after WWI and in those leading to the formation of the Irish State. So there is much of Irish interest in this volume.

- S8 Blessington, The Countess of (Edited by). *Heath's Book of Beauty - 1837.
Longman, Rees, Orme, Brown, Green & Longman, London 1837. 1st edition Crown 8vo. vi + 264 pp. Lacking all plates. Full gilt decorated calf & all edges gilt. Front inner hinge broken. A good clean copy of the text in an attractive binding.
The volume contains several pieces by Lady Blessington who was born Margaret Power, the daughter of Edmund "Buck" Power, at Knockbrit, Co. Tipperary in 1789. Forced by her drunken father at fifteen to marry Maurice Farmer, a sadistic brute, she bravely left him after three months. When he died in 1917 after falling from a window while drunk she married Lord Blessington. Though she mostly lived on the Continent, on his subsequent death in 1829 she moved to Mayfair where she carried on an affair with Count D'Orsay, her stepdaughter's estranged husband. She died bankrupt in Paris in 1849. She is perhaps best remembered today for her beauty and lifestyle, rather than her contribution to literature.

Cameron & Ferguson, Glasgow. No date c.1890. Author's edition. Small crown 8vo. viii + 9-320 pp. A couple of small convent stamps. In original green with overall wear, but internally good & clean.

John Mitchel was born in Dungiven, Co. Derry in 1815 of Presbyterian stock. He founded the 'United Irishman' newspaper in 1848. Convicted of treason he was sentenced to twenty years transportation, being sent to Tasmania, from where he escaped in 1853, eventually reaching the United States. There his disgusting advocacy of slavery and backing of the southern side in the Civil War leaves him a far less attractive figure than he is usually portrayed. For all that, the 'Jail Journal' is considered a classic of prison literature.
